PRESTON OUT BRUNSWICK IN

Great to be back.

BY BRUCE CAMPBELL

AS PREDICTED in Soccer Weekly over the last month the ASF has announced the formal relegation of Preston from next season's National League format and promoted Victorian Premier League club Brunswick United.

In announcing the change ASF Chief Executive Officer Ian Holmes said: "In making the determination, the Board of Commissioners considered the six criteria laid down when the Coca-Cola Soccer League was reconstituted two years ago.

"I am pleased to welcome, subject to certain conditions, Brunswick United Soccer Club into the 1993/94 League.

One of the successful points of Brunswick's application was their plan to ground share with Footscray Australian Football club, a move which Holmes called "innovative." Brunswick also plan to share other administrative areas with Footscray.

"Coupled with a progressive administration the Board is sure that Brunswick will make a positive impact on the Western Suburbs of Melbourne," Holmes said.

Brunswick already have one National Championship from a previous spell in the League and are considered by many to have been one of the sleeping giants over the last few years.

The announcement is also certain to set the transfer market alight with both Brunswick scrambling for players and also Preston off-loading some of their highly paid stars. Top of that list will be John Markovski who will attract a probable figure of $50,000 in Australia - or $200,000 should he move to Europe as is likely.

Speculation in Sydney last night was already linking Markovski with a possible move to champions Marconi.

Boban on trial

AC Milan arrive in Australia on Monday for their lightning-short three day tour of Australia.

The Italian champions will be coming after a match in Johannesburg in front of 70,000 spectators.

The game was specifically requested by Nelson Mandela and organised by Ruud Gullit.

Because of commitments in Italy, Milan will leave Australia on Thursday night — two hours after their match against the Socceroos at Princes Park in Melbourne.

Milan coach Fabio Capello told ABSW that the Australian trip was a important one for the club.

One of his tasks on tour will be to determine whether Croatian midfielder Zvonimir Boban has what it takes to replace Frank Rijkaard.

The Dutch ace won't come with the team as he is leaving the club and is at the moment negotiating in Holland and Spain.

The brilliant Boban, one of the stars of the 1987 world champion former Yugoslav youth team, has only had limited playing time with Milan last season because the champions could boast six top foreign players but only could use three at a time.

Milan owner Silvio Berlusconi has told Capello to use the Australian tour to fully test Boban's ability to fill the boots of Rijkaard.

If he passes the test, Berlusconi will not go after the big international star he normally will have signed Rijkaard.

Another player who will be out to impress the Socceroos next Wednesday and Thursday will be French national team captain Jean-Pierre Papin.

With the severely injured Marco van Basten's entire career now in doubt after yet another ankle mishap, Papin is likely to carry Milan's offensive load on his shoulders.

How he and Boban complement each other in Australia could determine how competitive Milan are next season when they defend their Italian title and how they fare in the European Champions' Cup.

CANADIAN EXPECTS GOOD SERIES AGAINST AUSSIES

ONE of Canada's leading officials had his appetite whetted for the upcoming World Cup qualifying tie with Australia.

Canadian team manager Les Wilson was at Olympic Park to see Australia wrap up the Oceania qualifying series with a 3-0 victory over New Zealand last Sunday.

Wilson said Australia had shown enough to promise a great series.

"Both teams are evenly matched and I think it will be an outstanding two-game series," Wilson said.

"We've scored a lot of goals in the 12 games we've played to get to this point.

"I feel the people in Australia and Canada are going to be served up two excellent matches."

Australia will meet Canada on July 31 in either Vancouver or Edmonton before the home leg in Sydney on the weekend of August 14-15.

The winner of that tie will then have to beat a South American country to make the 24 at next year's World Cup finals in the US.

Canada, which meets Australia after losing to Mexico, is at a similar stage of development according to Wilson.

"I think Eddie Thomson has done a first class job with the team," Wilson said.

"I think what has happened in the two countries is that we've improved our infrastructure mainly because both countries have more players playing in Europe.

"Nine of our squad of 18 players play in Europe on a regular basis, and it certainly helps our national team programs, especially the World Cup team when players get exposed to that level of competition and training."

Wilson said the Melbourne game gave him plenty of food thought about Australia's strengths and weaknesses.

He was particularly impressed with French-based striker Robbie Slater whom he said would trouble any team with his speed.

The 3-0 loss could have brought the curtain down on the careers of All Whites Ceri Evans, and goal keeper

Clint Gosling.

But New Zealand coach Ian Marshall, whose term expired, said the team would bounce back.

"New Zealand is at the beginning of another era," Marshall said.

"You would be making a big mistake if you started writing us off four years out (of the next World Cup in 1997).

"We've got some good lads at home and the first thing we've got to do is get a development squad going and build for the future."

FIFA TO RULE ON CUP POINTS CHANGE

FIFA is expected to decide this week to award three points for a win in first round World Cup finals matches in a bid to make the showpiece event more attractive.

Sepp Blatter, general-secretary of soccer's governing body, is in favour of changing the points system for next year's World Cup finals in the United States, and the issue is marked for discussion at FIFA meetings in Zurich this week.

FIFA's World Cup organising committee and its decision-making executive committee may also discuss the thornier issue of sudden-death extra time, although Blatter said in February it would not be introduced at next year's World Cup.

Blatter is on record as saying he believes three points for a win would encourage more entertaining play and reward teams that play attacking soccer.

The American organisers of the 1994 World Cup are eager to see the change.

FIFA experimented with sudden-death in this year's World Youth Championship in Australia and gave approval to the new Japanese League to use sudden-death extra time and penalty shootouts to decide drawn games.

Blatter has said he believed sudden-death may encourage coaches to try to win a match in extra time rather than play safe for penalty kicks.

But at an International Football Association Board meeting in February he said the only possible alteration to soccer's laws for the 1994 World Cup would be the awarding of three points for a win instead of two during the group round.

In a series of meetings, FIFA will also address the issue of introducing professional referees into the world's top leagues, something Blatter has been campaigning for since widespread criticism of poor refereeing performances in the last World Cup finals three years ago.

Blatter said recently: "Referees are an important part of football, but they are not envoys from God. They must become as professional as players to bring the game into line with society."

FIFA's referees committee has already given full support to Blatter's vision and the executive committee is expected to order some leagues to follow Italy and draw up plans to introduce professional referees.

The executive committee may also take steps to end the growing conflict between clubs and countries over releasing top players for internationals.

FIFA has the backing of the soccer confederations to try to set up a co-ordinated international playing calendar to avoid a continual clash between international commitments and major professional leagues.

The executive committee may vote on its introduction on Thursday.

WARREN TOPS

JOHNNY WARREN: readers picked him as their all-time favourite Socceroo.

Former Socceroo captain Johnny Warren topped Soccer Weekly's readers' competition with a 44% of all recorded votes. Readers were asked to nominate their favourite all-time Australian international and the former St. George player and Canberra City coach easily topped the popularity ratings.

The competition was sponsored by Sportspace Tours and the two lucky readers who have won a special AC Milan 'day' double pass are Anthony Demovic of Cronulla (favourite player Graham Arnold) and V Horvath, Sefton (who selected Johnny Warren).

GREAT GOALS

Maybe I am just naive, maybe it is because I am a football purist but my recent criticism of the footballing aspect of our World Cup campaign to date certainly hit the mark.

I probably received more phone calls on that topic than any other single subject in the last six months. If I am naive or a purist then it would seem that I am not alone.

Imagine my feelings then when Carl Veart opened up the account against New Zealand in such spectacular style. It was a goal worth waiting for but more was to come. Aurelio Vidmar's brilliant header had Clint Gosling totally 'goosed'.

I am sure that the Sydney Olympic keeper was positioned for an expected downward header and, like everyone else, was totally caught out when Vidmar chose instead to bullet the ball between his head and the crossbar.

But the third goal! Ned Zelic doesn't score many goals but when he does they are something else.

The way he beat his man and then steered the ball into a clear angle was every bit as classy as 'that' goal against Holland in the Olympic qualifier.

And at times the Socceroos showed their ability by stringing together eight and nine passes. That is football with a capital F.

All up the Socceroos were a delight to watch and games like that will have the fans rolling in.

It's one of the greatest sights in football to see a player running at his man with the ball dragging at his feet.

This is a rarity in a modern game in which stifling defensive tactics rule.

A game in which players are closed down almost as soon as they sniff the ball never mind try to run with it.

In this current Australian team Robbie Slater has amply demonstrated that he has that rare ability to make a defender's life a nightmare.

His ball play, distribution and timing are absolutely brilliant.

When Thomson has the luxury of fielding both him and Frank Farina for a full 90 minutes then someone is going to be on the end of a hiding.

I also believe that there is an important place in this team for Davie Mitchell.

Mitchell is the sort of strong running old-fashioned centre forward that will soak up the crosses supplied by Slater and Farina all day long.

He could well be the missing chink in Thomson's attack, and one that will send Australia on its way to USA '94.

OFF THE HOOK

On an average day I spend some two hours on the phone answering reader enquiries and generally chatting with the great soccer public about the various issues that affect the game.

It all adds up to two things. One is that there is a big interest in this game of ours.

The second is that the general public needs a focal point for their thoughts on the game.

Some weeks ago I wrote that the ASF were in the process of setting up nine committees to further their activities.

To date nothing has happened with this exciting new initiative but surely the public are screaming out to be heard. There must be some way that the ASF can broaden their public relations to establish an open phone line.

One of the great things about talking to readers is the diverse spread of opinions.

Naturally, I don't personally agree with all of the thoughts expressed but I do enjoy talking football.

I also come in for my share of criticism but, unlike some who find any criticism objectionable, I take this as part and parcel of the job.

Occasionally I get a letter or a call from someone who can only be described as fruitloop. Kevin Biner from West Brunswick falls into that category and I won't take up valuable space by printing a semi-decipherable chicken scrawl.

But, the rules of good taste aside, you are welcome to write in on any subject - and even if I don't agree personally, Soccer Weekly is delighted to print your thoughts on the game.

CONCERN

It is with some concern and considerable disappointment that some of Australia's overseas exports are considering withdrawing from the upcoming series against AC Milan.

Although I can sympathise with the players' needing a well earned break from soccer, surely the opportunity for some more international games against quality opposition in front of their own supporters counts for something.

Pity the Australian soccer public, except for the World Youth Cup in March, all our recent international success have only been available via the TV.

The last important match in Sydney for the Socceroos' "first team" was against Israel in the last World Cup.

Given the World Cup match against Canada is likely to take place in August, I would have thought the more games they can play together saw the better.

I know it's difficult to get these players released and I know that they have to prioritise their clubs vs country commitments, but can we make it sweeter for our star exports?

Lets face it: if Zelic, Farina, Slater, Vidmar and Arnold aren't playing, the gate will suffer.

Therefore, I propose that in future, the more experienced a player and the higher the international profile, the higher the match payments.

Maybe providing a financial incentive as these against AC Milan will make it easier for these guys to commit themselves.

As Ernie Tapai can vouch for, nationalistic pride isn't everything. How about a percentage of the gate?

I really don't care what it takes, whether it's jingoism, money, whatever, I want to be able to see Australia's first string team more than once every four years.

George Bramis
Randwick

(I sympathise with your feelings George. I think that we are going through something of a metamorphosis just now and expect that within the next three years that the Australian national team will be big business.

Sadly, the fans are suffering just now.

The first step is an easy one, though, let's make the Sydney Football Stadium the home of the Socceroos. I know that that won't be universally popular but every other country in the world has a home base for their national team. - Editor)

PRESENTATION

I am a fervent supporter and have been all of my life. It's a pleasure to see the game making progress in this country. Unfortunately, we still lag behind in some areas.

I would like to bring attention to a particular problem. I am always disappointed in the way the Australian team lineup for the playing of the National Anthem. After seeing so many games live and on television I cannot but compare our teams presentation to other countries. The two games against New Zealand are good examples.

The Australian players can't seem to stand still. They are either moving their heads around or flexing their muscles.

This is fine for warming up but not while the national Anthem is being played. Also is there a reason why the players are standing five feet apart?

It looks much better if they are standing shoulder to shoulder like other teams do.

According to my knowledge of soccer protocol, a Captain's place is next to the linesman and not last in line like Paul Wade was in Auckland.

These players are representing Australia and should take a more professional attitude in the way their image is projected not only in Australia but to the world.

We might not be Brazil, Germany or the Netherlands in the way we play but we should at least match them in our presentation.

This letter should be seen as constructive criticism, and it is hoped that the hierarchy in the ASF and management of the Socceroos take note and remedy these deficiencies which have been going on for far too long.

(Ms) J K Radic
FLOREY ACT

(I think you are spot on. One of the things that has always caught my eye over the years is the discipline of national teams like Germany during the playing of the national anthem. For that one and a half minutes our players should only be focussing on the pride of playing for their

ETHNIC BAIRD

This is a reply to John Baird's letter dated 3.6.93. You obviously know absolutely nothing about football in this country.

Firstly, you state in your letter that Victorians are probably "watching Aussie rules".

I hope you saw the finals series Baird, especially the second leg of the major semi-final. South Melbourne vs Marconi.

How many Victorian supporters made the trip to Sydney by bus and by plane. Even though, the result was the most embarrassing in the history of South Melbourne their supporters did not divide in their passion.

Another example is this year's grand final. Glamour club Marconi boasts a 'huge' following, yet at this year's grand final there was a crowd of 13,000.

However, in the '91-'92 season, Melbourne CSC vs Adelaide City (played in Melbourne) there was a crowd of 18,000. so which clubs have the most support Mr Baird?

Secondly, Mr Baird, you have suggested that most clubs have snubbed the ASF regulations and are still using their 'ethnic' named.

Even the most racist county in the world, South Africa has a team in their National League called Capetown Hellenic. Recent European champions are called Marseille Olympic.

In the US there is a team called 'Cosmos'.

Yet, here in Australia, where we are held up on a pedestal by the rest of the world as a multi-cultural nation other football teams are compelled by the ASF to forego the multi-cultural communities that have supported them both financially and emotionally.

This great world game of football was introduced to Australia by the British in the 1860s. However, the 'nationalist commits' could not deal with the fact that the "imperialist British" were much better than them and each time England played the 'Colonies', the 'Colonies' would lose dismally.

Therefore, the 'nationalist commits' decided to invent their own game, "Aussie Rules" so that the British could not play.

These predominantly Anglo-Saxon Australians loved Aussie Rules for they could not be beaten and humiliated at their own game.

They did not realise that nobody else played their game either.

Therefore, football clubs are predominantly ethnic backed, because it was 'ethnics' that bought this world game back into prominence in Australia.

You also, suggest that clubs do not attempt to incorporate the local areas. How can they, when people like you still call this an "ethnic game" and only "ethnics" play this code of football?

You state "lets go back to an Anglo-Saxon game", however, you do not realise Mr Baird that you too are an "ethnic".

For the only "true Australia" football team in our National League would be one backed by an Aboriginal community.

Yet then again Mr Baird, you could probably call them 'ethnic' too, as they also do not speak the Queen's English.

Helen Ntentis

(You raise several good points Helen. This a very emotive subject and one which needs to be looked at practically, not with pie-in-the-sky theoretical ideas about what way soccer can be developed in a perfect world. The world isn't perfect, soccer is a European game and we must play, and enjoy, this sport with both of these thoughts in mind. Anyway, enjoy the video - I know it's Anglo-Saxon but its a great tape and Network are to be congratulated for their enterprise and support of this page. - Editor)

Everton's Greatest
FA Cup Victories

The Merseyside giants Everton are one of the FA Cup's favourite sons. This programme features 6 of Everton's most famous encounters and many of the game's greatest characters, including manager, Howard Kendall, Andy Gray, Neville Southall and Peter Reid. Thrilling action includes:-

★ The victory over Sheffield Wednesday in the 1966 final as Everton win 3-2 after a miraculous comeback in the last 20 minutes.

★ Everton, coming from behind again, beat Luton 2-1 after extra time in the 1985 semi-final, to keep a record breaking treble firmly in their sights.

That in itself would be a huge psychological boost to their

MAROONS INJURY DOUBTS

BY ROB BLACK

QUEENSLAND have lost several key players for the state of origin clash with NSW at Perry Park this Saturday night.

Socceroo defender Alan Hunter and South Melbourne's Danny Wright have pulled out due to personal commitments while Stephen Corica is injured and Craig Moore overseas.

Young Socceroo Moore, arguably Australia's best at the recent World Youth Championship, has returned to Scotland where he has offered terms by European giants Glasgow Rangers.

The newly capped Corica is still recovering from a rib injury sustained in a trial prior to the World Cup eliminations with New Zealand.

Maroons coach Juan Cutillas is naturally disappointed to lose all four particularly the two youngsters — considered Australia's newest stars in the mould of Frank Farina and Ned Zelic.

"To lose both Craig and Steve is very unfortunate. The loss is tremendous and it's just a shame that out of all the Australians in the squad (Socceroos) Corica was the one to get injured," said Cutillas.

Cutillas has called Brisbane United defenders

CRAIG MOORE: on trial with Glasgow Rangers.

Stein Grodum and Glenn Gwynne into the squad along with Graham Eden (Pine Rivers).

Steve Jackson and Mark Greer, also of United, have niggling injuries and may not be fit in time. However Cutillas is confident of victory at Perry Park with several new faces likely to get a start in the Maroon shirt.

The return NSW vs QLD match in Newcastle has been re-scheduled for July 10 due clashes with the AC Milan vs Australia series and the Blues last minute tour to Korea.

In other news on Brisbane United, the club's restructure and financial stability is well in hand according to secretary Lawrence Oudendyk.

Oudendyk said the club was in a strong position for a big year in 1993/94 as discussions with sponsors and new members of the restructure were proceeding.

Wide Bay Bricks has increased its sponsorship and new marketing man Brian Kerle was involved in several new ventures on behalf of the club said Oudendyk.

Marton urges Slater move

Socceroo ace Robbie Slater has been urged to play in Italy or Germany by the coach who guided him as a teenager.

St George mentor Dez Marton believes Slater, man of the match in Australia's 3-0 World Cup win over New Zealand on Sunday, needs to give himself a new challenge to achieve his full potential.

Marton, who coached Slater for three years at St George before his move to Sydney CSC in 1986, said a move would provide a vital boost.

"Robbie is a world class player who is certainly good enough to play in Italy or Germany," said Marton.

"A player needs to test himself and try something new and Robbie should move to maintain his motivation."

Slater, 27, who has just signed a new three-year contract with the French first division side, has already attracted the interest of English giants Arsenal and Everton.

"I'm sure he feels the money and security at Lens is good but a player's career is short," added Marton.

And he is convinced there is still room for improvement in Slater's game after watching him against the Kiwis.

"If Robbie comes to Sydney I would like to sit down with him and watch a video of the game," Marton said.

"I believe Robbie can make himself and even more dangerous player."

Marton cited a couple of chances which Slater created for himself.

But he said too many of Slater's runs ended with a cross or a shot when he could have taken the ball into the opposition's penalty area.

"With a little more thought and composure he could have given himself a better chance of scoring because he certainly has the skill to get into these positions."

Meanwhile, Marton believes St George's remarkable comeback against title chasers Bonnyrigg could prove a turning point for the Super League strugglers.

With just ten minutes left, St George trailed 3-0 before a late goal blitz earned two valuable points.

"That kind of comeback can provide a huge boost for the side in terms of morale," said Marton.

"After losing our previous five games, it was vital to come away with something last weekend."

"Now we have to take that spirit into our next game against Canterbury."

HEIDELBERG POSITION HINGES ON PHONE CALL

Coca Cola Soccer League team Heidelberg will know today whether coach Drago Sekularac has dumped his Melbourne side in favour of a lucrative contract in Europe.

"We think he might sign for Apoel, Cyprus first division side," Steve Bitsanis the Bergers vice-president said.

The Melbourne side has been in touch with Sekularac and he has told officials he is considering an offer and will make a decision. Bitsanis said his club would be on the telephone to the coach early tomorrow to find out what was going on.

Heidelberg players were saying openly last weekend that Sekularac had deserted the club, but Bitsanis has not yet given up hope of bringing the coach back to Australia.

"Nothing has been decided yet," he said.

Sekularac was an inspiration to Heidelberg last season even though he joined the club with only half a dozen league games remaining.

He coached the struggling side to a league cup championship and was seen as the saviour who would lead the Olympic Village squad to better things next season.

TROY CRANNEY

Cranney boys sweep up at United awards

BRISBANE United's talented young midfield swept the National Soccer League club's 1993 annual awards with Troy Cranney carrying off the prized Player of the Year silverware.

Cranney, 21, a former World Youth Cup squad member, was also voted the Players' Player in a big night for him and younger brother, Shaun.

Shaun, 19, who played for Australia in this year's World Youth Championship only to miss the final with a knee injury, was judged United's Most Improved player during a difficult season.

Another of the club's outstanding youngsters, 18 year-old Brenley Jefford, was named Rookie of the Year.

United coach Miron Bleiberg hopes the three award winners will remain with Brisbane.

Both Jefford and Shaun Cranney are contracted and would be subject to transfer fees if they received offers.

Troy Cranney, who has trialled overseas in Germany, is off contract and on the free transfer list.

"Sure I'd love to have them back next year," said Bleiberg.

"They developed a lot together last year and I believe they would benefit even more from another season together."

United, battling financial pressures and the recent resignation of chairman Bob White, put aside its internal problems to honour its players, including veteran Frank Pimblett, in his testimonial year with the NSL club.

SOPER WANTS TO BE A COACH

MARSHALL Soper, the soccer enigma who has given his coaches plenty of heartache and stick during his topsy-turvy career, intends to one day join the clipboard brigade.

Many would consider his ambition Australian soccer's great irony. Soper's scrapbook is dominated by headlines which tell a story of numerous verbal dust ups and conflicts with club management and coaching identities such as Tom Docherty and Eddie Thomson.

His words and actions off the field undoubtedly cut short his international career.

But the 32-year-old who will skipper the New South Wales Soccerblues in Korea for the President's Cup in Korea next week said it was such incidents which will make him a successful coach.

"They say only the biggest bastard knows a bastard's tricks best, so with that in mind I think I could coach a team and do it well," he said.

"I know all of the angles like why a player misses training and so on ... and as far as soccer goes I've been through it all.

"I've suffered injuries, played in games that have erupted into riots, gone through club transfer wrangles, been picked, and axed, from national sides and been dropped from first grade."

Soper said his colourful experiences had also given him an insight into the complex issues which can make or break team spirit.

"I would be strict but I would be wary of the little things," he said. "Sometimes a player might turn up and have a few hassles on his mind like losing a job, or breaking up with his girlfriend.

"In such a situation you can't always be the tough coach and say run 20 laps or whatever, the matter calls for some understanding."

Soper is using his selection as the Soccerblues' skipper as the first step towards realising his aim.

The many young guns in the 18-man squad will be looking to arguably

MARSHALL SOPER

Australia's most skilful player for guidance when they clash with teams from Korea, China, Egypt, Mexico, Romania, Egypt and Czechoslovakia.

"I like the idea of such a responsibility," Soper said. "My experience means I have to set standards at training, during a game and even away from the field.

"I'm in a position where I cannot be seen to be one of the boys ... I have high standards to meet."

Many believe Soper should not be going to Korea with the state team. Instead they say he should be playing a key role with the Socceroos in their World Cup campaign against Canada.

But Soper said he accepted he had very little hope of ever cracking an Aussie spot because of his ice-cool relationship with national coach Thomson.

"I don't like my chances of getting a run with Thomson and I don't think the fact I pulled out of the last World Cup squad has been forgotten by too many," he said.

Critics believe if Soper had stayed in the 1986 side Australia could have beaten Scotland to qualify for the Mexico tournament.

But that is past history. Marshall Soper is looking only towards the future now and that is doing his best in Korea and a bit later down the track carting the coaches clipboard.

RASIC DEFENDS SOCCERBLUES

NEW South Wales coach Rale Rasic has hit back at criticism of the decision to send the state team as Australia's representative to the prestigious President's Cup in Korea later this month.

Victoria and Queensland are furious the Soccerblues will be appearing in lieu of the Socceroos who are tied up in their World Cup campaign.

But Rasic, who coached Australia to the World Cup finals in 1974, insists the Australian Soccer Federation has made the right decision in appointing NSW to confront teams from China, Korea, Romania, Czechoslovakia, Mexico and Egypt in the tournament.

Victoria and Queensland are adamant the Federation should have selected a composite Australian side, but Rasic said that would have been too complex.

"The Federation has made the right and sensible decision," Rasic said.

"If they had to decide on an Australian team they'd still be talking about it and we probably wouldn't have made it to the competition."

Rasic said the tour will be a big eye opener for many young players and should be the foundation for many to build long and successful careers.

Apart from expecting a good performance from the Soccerblues, Rasic said he was looking forward to his trip to Korea to look up old foes and friends.

"I haven't been there since '73 but the idea of meeting up with people I met 20-years ago makes me feel good," he said.

"That is what makes sport so great...the fact people of different cultures can maintain a mutual respect because of their admiration for one another's sporting prowess."

ASF chief executive Ian Holmes said he expected a first class performance from NSW in Korea.

"The quality of the New South Wales team influenced us, there are seven or eight players who have represented Australia at one level or the other," he said.

Sacking rumours denied by Jinky Joe

JOE Watson, the CYC Stanmore coach, denied rumours that his side's 0-0 draw with Canterbury Marrickville last weekend saved his job - which was on the line after six consecutive defeats.

"I've read the rumours in a couple of papers," admitted Watson, who took the club into the Super League after winning promotion from the First Division last season.

"But the club has been right behind me all season.

"The draw with Canterbury should see us back on our winning ways over the next four or five weeks".

Earlier in the season Watson had taken the club to second place in the Super League after an impressive five match winning streak, but then suspension, injuries and players losing form saw the team's relatively small and inexperienced squad lose its way.

Former Socceroo Watson believes the club could still be in the Top Five at the end of the season.

"We play Wollongong, St George, Eastern Suburbs, Warringah Dolphins and Sutherland over the next five weeks.

"Over the next two weeks we will know if we have any part to play in the Top Five - we have to win our next two matches to remain in touch.

"We will have Jason Bennett back at the weekend and with Gary Phillips in superb form I believe we are coming back to our best."

JASON BENNETT: should strengthen CYC Stanmore this weekend.

LIONS COACH BLASTS REF

BY PHIL MURPHY & STEPHEN COPPING

REFEREE Chris Smyth was spat upon as he left the field after the Round 15 Super League match between Wollongong United and Canberra Deakin.

Wollongong coach Albin Mikulski blasted referee Smyth after his side drew 2-2 with Canberra Deakin, claiming: "Both their goals were inspired by the referee - without him we would have won."

Smyth was also abused by angry Wollongong supporters after playing seven minutes of extra time for injury time.

Five minutes into injury time, Canberra scored the equaliser, grabbing what had looked like an unlikely two points when they went 2-0 down after 34 minutes.

Smyth later complained to Wollongong officials that he and his linesmen didn't receive protection as they walked to their dressing room.

The referee later indicated he would include the incidents in his match report.

Mikulski was livid with the match officials.

"Right from the kick-off the referee (Smyth) was giving ridiculous decisions.

"Our keeper (John Perosh) was forced to make a brilliant penalty save when the so-called foul was not even in the area.

"When we were 2-0 up I thought

Wollongong coach Albin Mikulski: furious with referee's decisions.

we were playing well enough to take all the points.

"But then the referee gave them another penalty.

"Then he played enough extra time for them to get an equaliser - even then their player was offside.

"The referee gave everything to Canberra."

Mikulski said he was worried about the referee's safety after the game but when things cooled down he went to see Smyth.

"I just told him how disappointed I was with his game," said Mikulski.

"It's frustrating for me and the players when we do enough to beat a side like Canberra only to be denied by some strange decisions."

RATCLIFFE STAYS

BY PHIL MURPHY

IT'S OFFICIAL: David Ratcliffe will stay on as coach with Wollongong City next season.

Wolves chairman Brian Hastings made the announcement at the club's highly successful awards function at Fraternity Club last Saturday night.

It was the news players and supporters had been waiting for.

In recent weeks there had been speculation that Ratcliffe could be leaving Brandon Park.

A minority of club directors felt that after four seasons it was time for a change.

Sanity prevailed and Ratcliffe can start planning for his fifth campaign.

Last season Ratcliffe guided the Wolves into fourth spot — one better than the previous season.

In making the announcement, Hastings said there was never any doubt in his mind that Ratcliffe would stay on.

"There may have been some speculation around the place but as far as I was concerned there would be only one man for the job," Hastings said.

"We have become the envy of some clubs who spend a lot more money than we do after making the playoffs two years in succession.

"David Ratcliffe was largely responsible for that happening."

Ratcliffe has already started looking around for at least two new players for next season.

He said he is confident of attracting a midfielder and a striker to Brandon Park. "We also have to ensure we retain the likes of Mick Smith and Matt Horsley," the coach said.

"There is definitely a chance of Smith being lured away while Horsley could also be a target.

"We have to consolidate on the good work we have done on and off the field over the last two years."

A crowd of 580 packed Fraternity Club for the awards night with veteran centre-back Mick O'Shea taking home the major trophy.

O'Shea was named player of the year with centre-backs also taking out the other two awards.

David Kerr was named youth team player of the year with Steve Forshaw the club's rookie of the year.

Smith was voted the most entertaining player at the club. ASF president John Constantine attended the function with NSL manager Peter Russell.

Constantine paid tribute to the good work being done for the code in Wollongong and to the club's success on the field over the last two years.

He said Ratcliffe had played a major role in that success and he was pleased that the former Soccerroo captain had been re-appointed.

CHARLIE YANKOS: like Ratcliffe set to stay with Wolves next season.

JOHN FOXMAN

Unfulfilled dreams

IN 1986, when playing for Melita Eagles, John Foxman, the Hakoah striker, was described as the new Marshall Soper.

This was certainly high praise for any young player but it was true that at the age of 21 Foxman had the football world at his feet.

During the 1984 season Foxman had already revealed his potential when he was awarded the NSL Youth League Player of the Year. He also made his first appearance in the National League for Sydney City against Melita Eagles in that season.

"I will never forget that match as I was lucky enough to score with my first touch in a 6-0 defeat of the Eagles," says Foxman.

"It was a childhood dream come true, playing with stars like Frank Farina, John Kosmina and Joe Watson in the sky blue colours."

It was ironical that being in such a star studded squad prevented John Foxman from making more than a handful of first team appearances for Sydney City.

"I didn't want to leave the club but first team football was what I wanted even if it meant playing in the State League," says Foxman.

In his debut season at Melita Eagles, John Foxman scored 12 goals and it looked as though he would fulfill his earlier promise. However, he hadn't counted on the event of Round Five in 1987.

"I had scored six goals up till the match against Warringah Freshwater and ever present in my mind was a return to NSL football," relates Foxman.

"The tackle came out of nowhere and I felt a fierce pain in my right knee."

It was a cruciate ligament injury which forced Foxman to later have a knee reconstruction.

After spending a season in Israel and making limited appearances with the Maccabi Club, Foxman joined forces with Eastern Suburbs Lions in their first season in Super League last season.

"I was really feeling confident until it happened again," says Foxman.

"I was involved in a tackle with a Blacktown defender in the fifth round when I felt my left knee cave in."

At the end of 1992 Foxman was given a free transfer to Hakoah in Division One. Amazingly John Foxman is still only 27. As Foxman relates, "Who knows where I'd be now if it hadn't been for that first knee injury at Melita, and although I'm still struggling with both knees I've still managed to put away six goals this year."

"I intend having an arthroscopy on my left knee in September so I'm hoping next season will be even better."

Against Belmore last week Foxman came on as a second half substitute and swung the pendulum towards Hakoah with his mazy runs — there is no doubt that John Foxman has plenty of good football left in him.

Injury heartache for Sterrey

WARRINGAH DOLPHINS coach Glenn Sterrey has suffered a cruel injury blow which threatens an early end his playing career.

The 34-year-old veteran defender has a suspected broken leg which, if confirmed, would rule him out for the rest of the season.

It is a heartbreak setback for Sterrey in his last season at Cromer Park after four years in charge of the Dolphins.

"I was desperate to finish off by playing the rest of the season but it looks like this won't happen now," said a sad Sterrey.

The injury occurred two weeks ago against Bankstown when Sterrey fell awkwardly after challenging for a ball in the air.

"At first I thought I had damaged my ankle ligaments because of the swelling but it turns out a bone in my leg could be broken," explained Sterrey. He will find out the exact extent of the injury after visiting a specialist this week.

"If it is broken I have been told the only answer is complete rest.

"At the moment, I can hardly put any weight on the leg, never mind run or jog," added Sterrey whose decision to quit follows a promotion at work which involves a transfer to Adelaide in October.

"I have pretty much decided to take a year off from the game once I get to South Australia to recharge the batteries," he said.

"And at my age there's no real chance of playing again at this level once I've been away that long," added Sterrey, a former National League star with Apia and Blacktown.

After guiding the Dolphins to the play-offs last season, Sterrey has watched his side struggle this term.

Their top five prospects took a further battering last weekend with a 4-0 thumping at home by league leaders Blacktown.

JASON POLAK: returning for the Dolphins after starring for the Soccerroos.

But Sterrey has not given up hope of sneaking in although he admits it will take a dramatic return to form.

"There are 11 games left and to have any chance we have to win seven or even eight of them, which is a pretty big ask," he said.

The Dolphins will receive a boost for the trip to Adamstown with the return of Soccerroo Jason Polak.

Signed on loan from National League club Newcastle, the midfielder has missed three games because of his World Cup commitments with Australia.

But his return will be offset by the loss of Frank Gigliotti and Wayne Pierce who have been called up to New South Wales squad for the state of origin clash with Queensland at Perry Park in Brisbane on Saturday.

"Their absence will obviously hurt us but there is no way we would stand in the way when it comes to representative football," said Sterrey.

THE 18-MAN

CONTAINING 14 NATIONAL LEAGUE STARS AND FOUR SUPER LEAGUE PLAYERS

MARSHALL SOPER (CAPTAIN)

CLUB: Parramatta Eagles & Bankstown City

D.O.B: 12/5/61

PREVIOUS CLUBS: Apia, Sydney Olympic, Wollongong City, Canterbury Marrickville.

POSITION: Striker

The former Socceroo will lead the NSW State team during the President's Cup. Soper is currently playing with Super League side Bankstown City, and will lead the forward line with David Seal or Zlatko Arambasic.

AYTEC GENC

CLUB: Parramatta Eagles

D.O.B: 32.66

PREVIOUS CLUBS: Bankstown, Marconi-Fairfield, Uruguay Penrith.

Position: Midfield

One of the most skilful players in the National League, and was desperately unlucky not to be involved with the Socceroos during their World Cup qualifier with New Zealand. Will be a crucial player for the Soccerblues as he gets the strikers involved in the game with his penetrating through balls.

ANDY HARPER

CLUB: Marconi-Fairfield

D.O.B: 13/5/67

PREVIOUS CLUB: St George

POSITION: Midfield/Striker

Underrated player, who has had a great season, knocking in 17 goals as his team won the grand final. Another player who can count himself unlucky that he was not called up for the Socceroos this year.

PAUL SOURIS

CLUB: Parramatta Eagles & Canterbury Marrickville

D.O.B: 2/8/71

PREVIOUS CLUB: Leichhardt Tigers

POSITION: Defender

Talented defender who can also operate in midfield. Is used as a sweeper for Canterbury, and coach Rale Rasic will no doubt use Souris in the same position for the Soccerblues.

BRAD MALONEY

CLUB: Leichhardt Tigers

PREVIOUS CLUBS: AIS, Leichhardt Tigers, Blacktown City, Canberra Metro, Newcastle BHP Breakers.

POSITION: Midfield

Talented Olyroo star has been involved in a transfer wrangle with Newcastle and his new club Leichhardt Tigers which has prevented him playing for the last two months. Once fully fit will slot into the team and should combine well with Genc.

FRANK GIGLIOTTI

CLUB: Warringah Dolphins

D.O.B: 17.1.72

POSITION: Midfield

Unpredictable playmaker who is an interesting selection by coach Rale Rasic, as he has not had an outstanding season to date in the Super League. On a good day, is a useful goal scoring midfielder.

ZLATKO ARAMBASIC

CLUB: Sydney Olympic

D.O.B: 24.10.69

PREVIOUS CLUBS: Canterbury, Blacktown City, Mechelen (Belgian First Division)

JOHN GIBSON

DAVID SEAL

NSW STATE SQUAD

Formed a useful striking partnership with David Seal at Olympic this year, and Rasic hopes that combination will continue for the Soccerblues.

GERRY GOMEZ

CLUB: Parramatta Eagles & Hakoah
D.O.B: 18.8.60

PREVIOUS CLUBS: Sydney City, Blacktown, Marconi-Fairfield, Canterbury Marrickville.

POSITION: Defender/Midfielder
Gomez is the veteran of the Soccerblues side and his versatility and frequent goalscoring raids will be useful in Korea. His ability in the air is always a danger at set pieces.

ROBERT WHEATLEY

CLUB: Parramatta Eagles
D.O.B: 17.1.62

PREVIOUS CLUBS: Blacktown City, Marconi-Fairfield

POSITION: Defender
Now in the twilight of his career, Wheatley will be challenged for the sweeping position by his team-mate Paul Souris, which could see the former Socceroo move to a full-back position.

MIKE SMITH

CLUB: Wollongong City & Eastern Suburbs
D.O.B: 30.4.69

PREVIOUS CLUBS: St Johnstone, Alloa, Eastern Suburbs
Position: Sweeper, midfield or striker. Smith is currently involved in transfer negotiations with a couple of National League sides which could see him leave the Wolves after two successful seasons. He is now playing with Eastern Suburbs in the Super League.

DAMON LANGAN

CLUB: Blacktown City
D.O.B: 28.3.72
POSITION: Stopper

Called up to the Soccerblues side after some impressive performances for the Demons over the last two seasons. Could well be playing in the National League next season if he can transfer his Super League form to the NSW State side.

STEVEN BERRY

CLUB: Blacktown City
D.O.B: 29.8.68

POSITION: Midfielder
Berry can be used as a wide midfield player, and also scores his fair share of goals. At 24, Berry will be hoping for good performance during the President's Cup will get the attention of some National League coaches.

MATTHEW BINGLEY

CLUB: Marconi-Fairfield
D.O.B: 16.8.71

PREVIOUS CLUB: St George
POSITION: Defender
Bingley could be doubtful for the squad as he could be promoted to the Socceroo team to face AC Milan next week. Socceroo coach Eddie Thomson, concerned over his defence, sees Bingley as a more mobile defender than either Dominic Longo or Alex Tobin.

PETER GUNNING

CLUB: Parramatta Eagles
D.O.B: 28.2.68

PREVIOUS CLUBS: Newcastle (Junior), AIS, Canberra, Warringah Dolphins
POSITION: Goalkeeper
First team choice for the Soccerblues and now regarded as the third ranked goalkeeper in Australia. Gunning still has his critics, who feel he still makes the occasional blunder.

BRETT HUGHES

CLUB: Wollongong United

POSITION: Goalkeeper

Hughes replaced Marconi-Fairfield keeper Mark Schwarzer in the Soccerblues squad. Schwarzer, the Goalkeeper of the Year, made himself unavailable due to a trial in Germany

DAVID SEAL

CLUB: Sydney Olympic
D.O.B: 26.1.72

PREVIOUS CLUBS: Sydney Croatia, Marconi-Fairfield
POSITION: Striker

For the last two weeks Seal has been in Belgium trying to secure a professional contract overseas. Seal has made himself available for Rasic and the Soccerblues, and will be another automatic selection in the first team.

WAYNE PIERCE

CLUB: Warringah Dolphins
D.O.B: 24.1.67

POSITION: Midfielder
One of only four non-NSL players in the State team, (Gigliotti, Berry, Langan), Pierce is a capable, committed midfielder who, although a fringe player, will give a 100 per cent if called into action

JOHN GIBSON

CLUB: Sydney CSC
PREVIOUS CLUBS: Blacktown City, Leichhardt Tigers

Described as "Martin Peters" for his uncanny ability to appear from nowhere and score vital goals at the far post. Started the season well with CSC, grabbing six goals, before suffering a goal drought which saw him net only one more during the whole of the season. Was back to goalscoring form for Leichhardt Tigers scoring four goals in six games.

A LOOK BACK AT 67-68

1967-68

The legendary Bobby Charlton tries a volley for England.

NOBBY STILES

George Best with Footballer of the Year trophy.

THE STARS OF 1967/68

DENIS LAW

Scottish legend and United hero, Law was brilliant in the air and one of the most lethal strikers in front of goal the game has ever seen. Mobile and quick, Law and Best up front became icons of the United terraces.

NOBBY STILES

The midfield hard man of England's 1966 World Cup team, Stiles was also crucial to the United side with his tenacious play in midfield. Not many players ever said they had an easy game against 'Nobby.'

BOBBY CHARLTON

Charlton won everything in the game and deservedly so. One of the best strikers of a ball, Bobby could hit the ball superbly from 30 or even 40 meters.

GEORGE BEST

Legend. In 1967/68, Best not only won the League Championship and European Cup with United but also became the Footballer of the Year. Not only created goals with his unique brand of individual skill but also scored on a regular basis.

It took 26-years but Manchester United finally reclaimed the League Championship this season after finishing 10 points ahead of their nearest challengers, Ron Atkinson's Aston Villa.

We take a look at the crucial players who made it possible and a look at the 1967-68 season, when the double, the League Championship and the European Champions' Cup.

THE STARS OF 1992/93 RYAN GIGGS

The 19-year-old United forward has had a stunning season and is currently the subject of a $10 million offer from Italian giants AC Milan. With United qualifying for the European Champions' Cup, the Cardiff born and Welsh international will probably stay with the club for another season before trying his luck abroad.

PETER SCHMEICHEL

Now regarded as one the best goalkeepers in the world. He has been one of Alex Ferguson's best signings. The Danish international has been as consistent as ever has his superb reflex saves gave United at least 10 points last season.

PAUL INCE

The midfield star for United and England this season. Has for the last two seasons promised so much but this season delivered match winning performances in the middle of the park. Has taken over from his idol, Bryan Robson, as the midfield general.

ERIC CANTONA

Leeds United made the blunder of the season when they released the French striker. Cantona has now picked up his second League Championship medal in a row and his individual brilliance and his sheer presence put pressure on the United forward line at the right time.

ROUND 16 PREVIEW

LIONS TO SEE RED AT SELWYN PARK

By Greg Blake

Weakened Bulleen faces an angry Albion on the rebound at Selwyn Park in Saturday's blockbuster Premier League feature match-up of round 16.

The Reds - Lions clash shapes as a finals preview, but the double chance could hinge on what happens at the western suburban ground in one of seven all-Saturday games.

For one of the few times in his career, Albion coach Cedo Cirkovic was this Sunshine team, the big fellow has bagged eight goals in his first five guest games as the team has gone 4-1-0 and jumped into the top five.

Markovski has jagged goals in each of those five games as Sunshine has rattled off 15 in total after scoring just eight in its first eleven matches of the campaign.

St Albans has beaten four of last year's finalists at its Churchill Reserve home this year, with the chance to add another scalp to the belt with the visit of Springvale City on Saturday.

Just to prove miracles do happen, hapless Caulfield in three of their last four encounters and Kenny Murphy's side is starting to hit the finals form going into Saturday's game.

In other games this Saturday, Knox City is gearing up to further humble ailing Juventus at the Egan Lee Reserve, league leader North Geelong travels to Bamba Road for a meeting with Caulfield City and Thomastown, which managed its only win for the season against Croydon City back on March 24, gets a return game against the Dons at Partridge Reserve.

Melbourne Radio 3AK's extensive cover of all the speechless following his side's defeat at home to Sunshine last weekend.

VICTORIAN PREMIER LEAGUE ACTION BULLEEN VERSUS NORTH GEELONG

All Cirkovic could do was shake his head in dismay as the Reds sacrificed a point in a game which could have gone either way.

The Albion camp was furious at missing its chance and Bulleen might feel the full brunt of the fury this weekend at Selwyn Park, where the Lions have yet to register a Premier League win.

Waiting to pounce on the loser of that game is Markovski George Cross - the John Markovski inspired side which has improved out of sight since big 'Jonesy' started his guest spell.

Sunshine takes on Altona Gate at Chaplin Reserve in a game John Waddell's side should win.

Just to underscore Markovski's contribution to inflicted the Vales' first home loss of the season last weekend - much to the disgust of Springvale coach Gus MacLeod.

The Saints' finals chances hinge on this one, but expect fired up Springvale to bounce back after blowing top spot with a stinker last weekend.

Green Gully and Fawkner meet in a replay of last year's Elimination Final at the Gully Reserve with Gully's new forward combination of Sash Becvinovski and Danny Gjnidic striking form for the first time last week.

But the Blues have a couple of striking talents of their own in 18 goal combination Carlos Retre and Brian Bothwell, who have scored more together than the whole Gully team this season. Fawkner has shut Gully out Victorian Premier League and Victorian First Division will continue this long weekend.

The 3AK team will be on air on this Queen's Birthday holiday Monday, rather than in the usual Sunday timeslot, to wrap-up Saturday's games and follow Monday's big matches as they happen.

Each Sunday 3AK (1503 on the AM band) goes around the grounds with all the Victorian action as it happens, with a full wrap-up of the day to follow between 2pm and 6pm each Sunday until the finals series goes live in August.

Note: A full round of Premier League matches will be played on Monday's Queen's Birthday Public Holiday with the previews of those games in the June 14 edition of ABSW.

SUN SHINES IN WEST

ALBION 1
SUNSHINE G.C. 2
By John Rigas

In a fiery western suburbs derby game Albion let two points slip from its grasp as it succumbed to the John Markovski factor and his Sunshine George Cross teammates.

It was Albion's first home defeat since April 26 last year, adding insult to injury to South Melbourne defender Kevin Muscat, who was playing his first of eight games on loan to Albion. Muscat, a former George Cross favorite, came under the spotlight from the George fans as they hurled abuse at the youngster and his teammates after the match.

Halfway through the first half Markovski sent shockwaves through the Albion camp as he smashed a 30 metre free kick around the defensive wall to nestle the ball in the bottom right hand corner of the net.

Albion midfielder "Lucky" Luciano Trani provided Joe Spiteri with a great chance to equalize but poor finishing enabled George to maintain their lead.

The Albion faithful were stunned by the half time scoreline and eight minutes into the second half there was cause for even more concern as George increased its lead. Markovski was again the showman as cheekily flicked on a Marc Arellis pass to Kon Pappas, who duly converted from eight yards to give Sunshine a two goal lead. Albion received a lifeline as they pulled a goal back just two minutes later, a free kick from the right side of the ground taken by Zoran Markovski finding Ayhan Patsaman, who headed back across goal to leave unmarked Joe Spiteri the goal from three yards out.

The Albion dressing room was like a morgue after the game with all the players devastated, none more so than Zoran Markovski. "This was the best game we played all season apart from the Brunswick Juventus and I hate losing that way," he said.

ALBION: Toth, Markovski, Grimaud, Douglas, Lucchesi, Trani, Fehmi (Kebakovski), Patsaman (Simsek), Spiteri, Muscat, Georgievski. SUNSHINE G.C.: Nikitovic, Stefanovski, Melrose, Cocker, Mangos, Roberts, Pappas, Dougherty, Markovski, Waddell, Arellis (Sherifovski). REFEREE: David Millican. VOTES: 3 - Markovski (A), 2 - Douglas (A), 1 - Markovski (SG C).

JUVE NIGHTMARE CONTINUES

BRUNSWICK JUVENTUS 0
NORTH GEELONG 2
by Peter Desira

Reigning champions North Geelong tasted the limelight of top spot once again, following their comfortable 2-0 defeat of Juventus at the Western Oval.

The match, a replay of last year's Grand Final, barely resembled that championship decider, with both sides undergoing wholesale personnel changes as the West Coasters made it four successive wins over the ailing Zebras.

Juve, perhaps with other things on their mind, chose to blood four youngsters and in doing so dropped veteran defender Paul Della Rocca and prize goalkeeper Robert Brian.

The Zebra's featured three players from the Victorian Institute of Sport, Jack Androulidakis, Andy Vargas and Sandro Razzi, whilst Michael Manzella took over the custodial duties from Brian.

Despite a first half where Juve had the slight upper

CAULFIELD'S MID-SEASON STUNNER

SPRINGVALE CITY 1
CAULFIELD CITY 2
By Dennis Christie

Basement-dwelling Caulfield City pulled off an upset of epic proportions when it toppled league leaders 2-1 under lights on Saturday night at the home of the 'Invincible' Vales.

Caulfield's win in this first against last clash ranks as the upset of the season to date, the win boosting the hopes of Jim Condilis' side in its fight to avoid relegation. In a tough clash between two of the promoted sides from the First Division II took a moment of Nick Papadopoulos brilliance to break the deadlock between the two combatants.

The moment of Papadopoulos magic came with the match locked at 1-1. John Dimitrellos was fouled outside the box, Papadopoulos stepped up and curled his free kick into the net leaving Brad Zealley stranded and the Caulfield players celebrating as if they'd won the F.A. cup, an all-expenses paid trip to Disney World and a subscription to Reader's Digest.

It always shaped as a special night for Caulfield, the strugglers taking a stunning second minute lead through the courtesy of Nick Deligiannis, who converted a Papadopoulos cross. The goal rattled the leaders and they seemed bewildered as Condilis' heroes should have increased the lead but wasted its opportunities, the main culprits being Darren Tuck and Chris Daglaras.

A half time tongue lashing from coach Gus McLeod seemed to have the desired effect on his dejected players as they came out with a new lease of life in the second half to cause Caulfield no end of problems. Indeed Jimmy Nelson grabbed the equalizer as he managed to convert David Hanna's cross.

It was the cue for the Vales to take command and go searching for the winner.

However, two substitutions in the space of five minutes by McLeod unsettled his midfield and allowed Caulfield back into the game.

Caulfield lifted a gear and in the last twenty minutes played as if they were the leader and not the Vales, producing a dramatic winner which is set to lift the spirits at previously dejected Bambra Road.

SPRINGVALE CITY: Zealley, Kenny, Nolan, Nelson (Concalves), Webster, McCleneghan, Wilson, Maguire, Hanna (Chisolm), Nield, Lennon. CAULFIELD CITY: Hatzitrifonas, Argyriou, Zafiroopoulos (Cattermole), Selemides, Sakellariou, Dimitrellos, Stenson, Papadopoulos, Tuck (Ubachs), Deligiannis, Daglaras.

REFEREE: John Fraser. VOTES: 3-Daglaras (C); 2-Maguire (S); 1-Dimitrellos (C).

RETRE RAMPAGE STUNS EAGLES

FAWKNER 5
KNOX CITY 0
By Nick Giannakopoulos

Fawkner went on its merry way with a comprehensive 5-0 drubbing over out of sorts Knox City at Jukes Rd on Friday night.

The Blues, led by a superb Carlos Retre who chimed in with a hat-trick, took the lead early and never looked likely to be headed.

George Karkaletsis floated in a free kick which found Retre for the match opener, super cool Carlos climbing above the defence to head home. Fawkner was in inspirational form and could have had a second after a Jimmy Goulis set Karkaletsis up for a shot which took the side netting.

The first half closed with Fawkner commanding play showing an array of ball skills and fine individual play, Knox were very lucky to be trailing by just the solitary goal.

The dominating Blues opened the second half in similar fashion to the first as Retre ran on to the through ball to curl the ball around the advancing Glen Goudie to put his side two goals up.

Mid-way through the half Retre nabbed his hat-trick as he controlled the ball for a delightful lobbing the ball over the hapless Goudie.

Every Fawkner player wanted to get in on the act as Karkaletsis put substitute Joe O'Donnell through to crossed for Chris Jackson, the Kiwi having no trouble in turning his man before coolly slotting the ball home to make it number four.

Just as Knox thought they had taken enough Karkaletsis yet again eluded his opponents finding Milan Vlatkovic, who side footed home the final nail in the Eagles coffin.

FAWKNER: Janssen, Kuzman, Goulis, Vlatkovic, Anezakis, Pender, Crivari (O'Donnell), Karkaletsis, Bothwell, Retre, Jackson.

KNOX CITY: Goudie, Bot, Jamieson, Bissenger, Chalmers, Bakker, Healey (House), Evans, Lutgens (Sais), Morgan, Wild.

REFEREE: John Santalabel. VOTES: 3- Retre (F); 2- Karkaletsis (F); Goulis (F).

GORAN BEATEN BY LEG BREAK

ALTONA GATE 1
ST ALBANS 1
By Tony Chikowski

The drama of this thrilling 1-1 draw at Paisley Park was overshadowed by the injury to star CCSL youngster, Goran Lozanovski.

The utility, on loan to Altona Gate from Preston, was taken to hospital with a suspected broken leg minutes from the end of the match, after colliding with Saints' keeper, Sean Keogh.

Lozanovski had earlier put the Gator's back on level terms with a 65th minute header at the far post after the "Iceman", Ice Kulesovski, had powered down the left to the by-line and whisted in a pinpoint left-foot cross.

After a tight and even first half where both defences were on top, the visitors took the lead three minutes after the break with Tom Pondeljak finishing off a move he started.

Pondeljak, playing with older brother Ollie of Melbourne CSC fame for the first time, pushed the ball wide right to young striker Charlie Fitzpatrick, who made space and centered for young Tommy to tap in from two metres.

Gator's custodian, Lee Davies made a number of good saves to keep his side within range of the Saints, the best coming in the 59th minute as he flung himself to deflect a scorching shot from St. Albans's player-coach, Les Carter.

Altona Gate, which has now drawn its last four matches, had the best opportunity to take full points in the dying minutes when the "Iceman" scuffed a shot from point-blank range after a cross from Darren Byrne.

ALTONA GATE: Davies, Micevski (Trajkovski), Harris, Parton, Markovski, Byrne, Petrov, Velkovski, Ferrante, Kulesovski, Lozanovski (Lingurovski).

ST ALBANS: Keogh, Milanovic, Radic, Kovacevic, Ketsakides, Marth, T. Pondeljak (Skenderovic), Fitzpatrick, Black, Carter, O. Pondeljak.

REFEREE: Jim Hogg.

VOTES: 3 - Kovacevic (SA); 2 - Markovski (AG); 1 - Harris (AG).

GREENS SPOIL DON'S PARTY

CROYDON CITY 3
GREEN GULLY 3
By Dwight Turner

Green Gully scored two goals in the last three minutes to grab a draw against Croydon City in a thrilling encounter at a Dorset Gardens on Saturday. The Dons, boasting the worst home record in the league, got off to an unbelievable start as a Craig Ireland shot was only parried by Gully custodian Charlie Sant and veteran Carl Gilder bundled the ball over the line after only a minute of play.

Paul Kaukiainen sent the Croydon fans into raptures rarely seen at the Dorset Gardens as he smashed home a super volley after another piece of inspiration by Ireland.

But, just as the Dons looked set to celebrate a rare home win, Gully, haunted by the threat of relegation, struck back. Good lead up work saw import Danny Gnjdic convert a Trajce Latomanski cross to get the Greens back in contention and Dennis Kalazic's side had a chance to equalize before half time, however the crossbar was to deny both John Campelj and Sash Becvinovski.

Croydon had the game seemingly wrapped up with only fourteen minutes to go as Craig Cubitt had a shot deflected into the net to give the Dons a 3-1 lead. But the last-gasp drama was about to begin, with Campelj finding Gnjdic to leave the on-loan striker to haul his adopted side back into the game.

Keeper Alex Eacott denied the rampant Greens on two occasions but on the third he was left stranded as an absolutely super swerving shot by Becvinovski which fairly ballooned into the net.

Alex Gymnopoulos then created an unusual double for himself as he was sent off for the second year in succession in this fixture for allegedly making an obscene gesture to the linesman.

Interested spectator at the game was Canadian national team manager Les Wilson who commented "The standard was very good, it was a very competitive game. Young Joe Tricarico has a big future as Becvinovski's goal was world class, no goalie in the world would have saved it".

CROYDON CITY: Eacott, Hayhurst, Hennessey, Malcolm (Spiteri), Cubitt, O'Dell, Ireland, McBride, Kaukiainen (Field), Gilder, Freund.

Three Lismore players were selected for the Under 17 Australian train-on squad — Alvos, Fittock and Bryan Keever.

Fittock and Alvos were selected into the final squad and travelled to the Solomon Islands to contest the Oceania qualifying group.

ANTHONY ALVOS and ADAM FITTOCK: both players are from Lismore and were selected for the Joeys after having played for NSW Country at Junior level.

KIWI CALLS IT A DAY!

NEW Zealand captain Malcolm Dunford's international career is over.

While he had been injury prone recently, Dunford said that had nothing to do with his decision to quit the international scene after being a regular in the New Zealand team for the past 10 years.

Rather it was a desire to see more of his wife Nusia, daughter Aniela, 4, and sons Stasio, 2, and Jasio, 10 months.

"I want to spend more time with them, to concentrate on being a husband and father," Dunford said.

"I've been very lucky in being able to play international football for so long."

Dunford, 30, said he hadn't liked making the decision but felt it was best to go out now, as captain.

He said it was only fair that coach Ian Marshall, having to start rebuilding for the next World Cup campaign, should know where he stood.

Dunford has been a great servant of New Zealand soccer since making his debut against Fiji in 1984.

Dunford said he will continue to play for Miramar this season and reassess his future after that.

Leading Antlers post fifth victory

SANTOS scored in the first half and Brazilian compatriot Alcindo scored in the second half as the Kashima Antlers beat the Yokohama Marinos 2-0 in the J-League in Japan.

Santos netted in the 14th minute and Alcindo scored it 11 minutes into the second half before 30,000 spectators at Hakata in southern Japan as League leading Antlers posted its third straight win.

It was Alcindo's sixth goal, leading the League's scoring ranking.

After drawing in the 90-minute regulation period and a 30-minute extra time, Verdy Kawasaki won the five-kick penalty shootout 5-4 and beat the Yokohama Flugels.

Nobuhiro Takeda scored with a volley shoot from the just outside of the penalty area after receiving a long pass from Tsuyoshi Kitazawa six minutes into the second half as Verdy took a 1-0 lead.

The two teams battled to a scoreless first half before 55,000 spectators at Tokyo's National Stadium.

Just two minutes later, 20-year-old Aldro of Brazil scored for Flugels as the two drew 1-1 before playing the extra time without a goal.

In the shootout, Verdy made all five shots but Flugels missed one.

Verdy improved its record to four-win, three-defeat while Flugels dropped to 3-4, suffering its third straight loss.

Ace striker Akihiro Nagashima netted three goals as the Gamba Osaka posted the 3-1 come-from-behind victory over the Nagoya Grampus Eight. Nagoya went ahead 1-0 on Brazilian Jorzinbo's 22m free-kick nine minutes into the first Shimizu S-Pulse scored one goal in an extra period to beat the JEF United Ichihara 2-1 at Ichihara, southeast of Tokyo.

Marseille boss fights back over bribe claims

OLYMPIQUE Marseille president Bernard Tapie has counter-attacked against accusations of bribing opponents made against his team.

The owner of the European and French champions alleged that Valenciennes officials had asked him whether he would agree to a draw before their May 20 league match.

"There were several witnesses present," said

Tapie in a statement released in reaction to the French league's official request for a police investigation into bribe claims made by a Valenciennes player.

Valenciennes defender Jacques Glassmann said he had been telephoned by a Marseille player before the game and then offered money by a club official to throw the game.

Tapie said he had total confidence in Jean-Jacques Eydelie and Jean-Pierre Bernes, the player and club official named in the bribing allegations. Bernes, the Marseille vice-president, has also made an official complaint to the police.

RAYMOND GOETHALS: has left Marseille and the controversy.

MARCEL DESAILLY: the 24-year-old Ghana-born Frenchman who won the 1992/93 European Champions' Cup in his first season at Marseille has re-signed for two years. Marseille boss Bernard Tapie, who brought him from Nantes, is reported to have offered him $3 million to stop him moving to Monaco.

Barcelona stay in touch with Real

REAL Madrid remain one point ahead of arch-rivals Barcelona at the top of the Spanish league with just two games to go.

Both sides won last weekend — although there were first-half jitters before they clinched the points. Reigning champions Barcelona went down 1-0 against seventh-placed Sevilla after 15 minutes and seemed to have little to offer apart from a series of long-range efforts from Dutch defender Ronald Koeman.

But they turned the game on its head immediately in the second period, Danish international Michael Laudrup scoring in the 46th minute and Miguel Nadal bundling home the ball two minutes later to secure the points.

Real, meanwhile, failed to find the target for the first 45 minutes but Luis Milla's 54th minute score gave them the lead, although it was not until the 89th minute that Michel finally made the game safe.

Deportivo La Coruna still have a mathematical chance of stealing the title, although few would bet against the big two — Real boast an astonishing 25 Spanish titles to Barcelona's 12 — slipping up.

But La Coruna — who have

never won the league or any domestic tournament — kept up the top-of-the-table interest with a 3-0 victory over lowly Cadiz, who are stranded at the bottom of the table with Burgos.

MILAN FINISHES WITH A WHIMPER

ITALIAN champion AC Milan failed to finish the domestic season on a winning note, held 2-2 at Genoa on the final day of the league competition.

But at the other end of the table, troubled Fiorentina, which went through two coaches this year, smashed six past Foggia but was relegated.

Fiorentina joined Ancona and Pescara, while Udinese and Brescia face a play-off to decide which side completes the drop into the Second Division.

Milan's Dutch stars Frank Rijkaard — who is quitting the club — and Marco Van Basten were missing but Ruud Gullit, also set to leave, and Frenchman Jean Pierre Papin made a welcome return to action.

Papin, a substitute during the side's European Champions' Cup defeat against Olympique Marseille of France, scored in the 65th minute after Marco Simone's opener.

Championship runner-up Inter sealed its season with an emphatic 3-0 win over Torino, ending four points behind the leader.

Uruguayan Ruben Sosa hit a double, with Russian Igor Shalimov the other scorer.

Parma's 1-1 draw against Naples was enough to earn it third place in the league, while Paul Gascoigne's head-to-head with compatriot David Platt ended in a resounding 4-1 win for Juventus.

The club leapfrogged Gascoigne's Lazio to end in fourth place but neither Englishmen made an impact after their recent international tour of duty against Poland and Norway, both being taken off in the second half.

FRANK RIJKAARD: quitting AC Milan — could be going to Spain.

BILLY BINGHAM'S LAST HURRAH

Northern Ireland are back in the groove. The new coach will have talent galore to work with

WHEN Billy Bingham finally steps down as manager of Northern Ireland at the end of their current World Cup campaign, he is confident of handing over a team in the ascendant.

Former Sunderland, Luton and Everton winger Bingham can look back on some remarkable achievements during his 18 years in charge of the Northern Irish, a reign which he believes makes him the longest-serving manager in international football.

In that time he has seen his patchwork team capture the now defunct British Championship twice and, more importantly, qualify for successive World Cup finals in 1982 and 1986.

The highlight was the defeat of host nation Spain to reach the quarter-finals in 1982, but since that team fell apart seven years ago things have never quite been the same.

Yet even though qualification for US '94 now seems extremely unlikely, Bingham still believes the Northern Irish will soon be back in business.

The 3-0 defeat in Dublin by the Republic of Ireland in March left Bingham's team facing an uphill task in a qualifying group also containing European Champions Denmark and the unpredictable Spanish.

RIVALRY

The rivalry between the Irish teams is there for all to see.

Northern Ireland's current decline is all the more difficult to swallow in the light of the Republic's success on the world stage. Bingham was clearly riled by the pre-match remarks of Republic manager Jack Charlton, and even more so by taunts from the Lansdowne Road crowd of "There's only one team in Ireland".

"Ah, yes," counters Bingham.

"But our fans could probably sing 'Only one team are Irish.'"

"And when all's said and done, we've still been to three World Cups compared to their one."

He believes that the Republic would not have had such success without the recruitment of a number of English, Scots and Welsh-born players under FIFA's generous grandparent rule.

And he is equally proud of the fact that all but one member of his current team was born in the Province.

"Eight of the team in Dublin was Under 25," he points out.

"Only Alan McDonald, Mal Donaghy and Nigel Worthington supply any real experience. But these lads could provide the nucleus of a decent team for six or seven years and they'll get better the longer they play together."

Bingham believes it is essential to look at the recent history of Northern Ireland's football team before examining their future.

"Between 1980 and 1987, Northern Ireland had their best-ever team, but since the demise of that side I've had a long, hard job to come up with fresh young talent," he admits.

"The nucleus of a very good team all went into decline at the same time. Jennings, O'Neill, McIlroy, McClelland, Armstrong, Hamilton, O'Neill, and Whiteside and both Nicholls all went together."

"We are a very small nation."

"We don't have the same cycle of players as great soccer nations like Brazil, Germany and even England. After '86 there was a dearth of talent, but I had to blood the youngsters and risk them at the top level."

"By our standards, we've awarded caps to a lot of players these past few years. Some have failed, some have come back after a poor start, others have taken to international football straight away."

"It would have been easy for

GEORGE BEST

me to leave after the 1986 World Cup with a very good track record, but if I'd done that I believe that Northern Ireland would have been through three or four different managers by now because the results wouldn't have been right."

"I knew we were heading for a decline, so I stayed to hold things together, with a very tight defence and stop us from being turned over. And now there are definite signs of improvement."

"Our results have been better over the last two years and we've gained some great results against the likes of Germany and Spain."

"That hasn't seduced us into believing we're going to qualify for the next World Cup."

"The team are certainly better than they were, but I still don't know just how far they can go."

"There is no point in kidding ourselves that we're up there with the Germans and Brazils of this world, but because we qualified for two World Cup finals, people expect us to maintain that sort of standard."

"If we can finish third in our qualifying group this time, that will still be a success."

Bingham, who was capped 56 times during a 13-year international career, insists he has enjoyed every minute of his reign.

But at 61 the time is now right to hand over to a new man.

Just who that man will be remains to be seen.

Former Manchester United fullback Jimmy Nicholl, one of Bingham's stars of '82, appears favourite for the job after helping Raith become the first team in Britain to win promotion this season.

RELUCTANT

Martin O'Neill is another being mentioned, though he would be reluctant to leave

Wycombe Wanderers so soon after guiding them into the Football League.

And what price George Best who recently threw his hat in the ring for the manager's job?

Bingham insists that he will not make recommendations, and is concerned only at leaving as steady a team as possible.

But he stresses the need for a successful team to lift some of the gloom surrounding life in the troubled province, and knows that the politics of life in Northern Ireland make this a job unlike any other in football.

CHARGE

"In all my years in charge, the team has been picked solely on playing ability," Bingham insists.

"Religion doesn't come into it. We have few enough players to choose from as it is without introducing any form of discrimination."

"In my team Catholics and Protestants play together, train together, room together and get on well together. They are a fine example to the rest of the community."

"We've got a lot of support right across the divide and I'd like to think that everyone living here would cheer us on."

"That was certainly the case when we were doing so well in the '80s and I sincerely hope they will have some more success to cheer in the not too distant future."

The World Game

GERD MÜLLER

Bayern Munich were only a Second Division club until they signed the greatest of modern scorers for $2,000.

We've heard claims of 1,000 goals for both Pele and Puskas.

Those totals, even if substantiated, would include a high proportion of hits on soft targets when playing exhibitions.

But Gerd Muller scored all his 628 goals in competitive play.

He listed them before leaving Germany in 1979 for a star-crossed assignment in Florida.

"I got at least one goal in every competition I played in," he said.

Muller, now 47 and fighting alcoholism, can browse through his past and reflect on how he gave hangovers to keepers.

"God help them," he said.

"Often I didn't know where the ball was going, so how could they?"

Der Bomber — No. 13 in his two World Cups — is etched for ever in memory when airborne in Mexico during extra time in the 1970 quarter-final, swinging his right foot to volley a winner over the upstretched hands of England's unfortunate Peter Bonetti.

That, though, is not how Muller pictures himself.

The image in his mind is of crouching low, sometimes almost on his back, in a crowded penalty area while turning to shoot amid the flying boots.

He says: "Hundreds of my goals were scored on the turn with only the vaguest sense of direction."

"I always knew the net was

There's only one "Bomber"

somewhere close, but not which corner I'd fired at."

Ray Clemence remembers a quite different strike by Muller when Bayern beat Liverpool 3-1: "He outjumped Larry Lloyd, nearly twice his size and good in the air, to head a cross against the angle of the bar and upright."

"I dived, but couldn't get to the ball as it bounced down and out with Muller on the ground. He'd jumped so high that he'd fallen over by the penalty spot."

"Yet he was up before me and reached the ball while it was still bouncing. Then he struck it in the net! He was lightning in the box."

Muller won the 1974 World Cup final in Munich, despite West Germany being one down after only a minute against Johan Cruyff's entrancing total footballers.

As Cesar Menotti, manager of Argentina's 1978 winners, observed: "A case of one specialist beating 10 all-rounders."

Muller is an amiable man, not boastful in any way — which is one reason for so many old team-mates rallying to help when the public learned that drinking habits acquired in Fort Lauderdale had ruined his fortune, his marriage and his health.

It isn't boasting, but justified pride, when Muller recalls that right-footed shot in the 43rd minute after a pounce and spin that left Ruud Krol of Holland on his backside, the picture of resignation.

Muller recalls: "My turn for that goal was timed off film at less than half a second."

"Precisely, 0.43 of a second."

"From boyhood, I had the knack of darting from goal to meet the ball, then turning to win time and space. Being only 177cms helps. I'd turn twice to the big defenders' once."

"Turns, spin and back-to-goal drills were the basis of my game and I'd spend an hour a day practicing them."

"Also I never lost sight of the fact that no ball is hopeless and that defenders are quite likely to hesitate."

"When it was me against a keeper, I never worried 'What if he stops it?' but only 'Where should I put it?'"

"And if there was no obvious gap, I'd aim at his left-hand corner because nearly every keeper is weakest there."

"Coaches teach shooting with the instep, but I scored hundreds close in with the inside of my right foot or by dragging the ball across with the toes of either foot."

TSV Munich 1860, Cup-Winners' Cup finalists against West Ham at Wembley in 1965, were the premier club of Bavaria until Bayern scouts spotted Muller scoring 48 promotion was concerned, Bomber could stay in the van.

"Remarks came back, although never said to my face," Muller said.

"I was only 18 but 90 kilos — nearly six kilos overweight, thickset and dumpy. The coach dubbed me 'The weightlifter' and asked if he was expected to put a bear among racehorses.

"It didn't help when I broke an arm on my first appearance and was out for six weeks, but a hat-trick in the reserves put things right."

"I went back in the first team, scored twice, and was never out from then on unless sick or injured."

Medals cascaded on Muller and Beckenbauer — the World Cup, the European Championship, three European Cups, a Cup-Winners' Cup, four League championships and four German FA Cups.

Muller revealed: "I'd intended to sign for 1860, not for Bayern. So it was a fluke that brought Franz and me together."

"I was the instrument for turning his genius into goals, but neither of us might have been so staggeringly successful without the other."

Maybe not, but most people's view of football is that the finisher outranks the creator.

For the game is about putting the ball in the net.

In that department, Muller stands alone.

He scored more international goals than he played games (68 in 62 appearances).

He's the record World Cup scorer with 14 goals from the 1970 and 1974 tournaments.

He also scored in each of Germany's six qualifiers for 1970. Nine goals in all — two equalisers and two last-minute winners.

Anybody who beats that will be some player!

ZAMBIA REPLAY

ZAMBIA's World Cup match against Senegal, postponed in April after the Zambian team was wiped out in an air crash on its way to Dakar, has been provisionally rescheduled for August 7. The proposed new date for the African Group B match was announced by FIFA last week.

Standard Liege win Belgian Cup

STANDARD Liege swept past a weakened Sporting Charleroi with two goals in the second half to win the Belgian Cup, its first trophy in over a decade.

Henk Vos, the Dutch striker, opened the scoring in the 56th minute when he took a pass from Brazilian defender Andre Cruz, beat two defenders and beat substitute goalie David Baetsle with a strong left-foot shot.

Five minutes later, Philippe Leonard added a second goal when he converted a rebound after Baetsle failed to control a shot from midfielder Guy Helleers.

Charleroi came into the final with several key players missing through injury and lost outstanding defender Olivier Suray early in the second half.

From that stage onward, the team fell apart and Standard, one of Belgium's best-known teams, won its first trophy in over a decade. Standard took the 1982 league title but fell back after a bribery scandal which cost the team the league title the next year.

Because of Standard's win in the Belgian Cup competition, FC Antwerp gained Belgium's third berth in the UEFA Cup competition together with FC Mechelen and Waregem.

FC Antwerp lost this year's European Cupwinners' Cup final against Italy's Parma at Wembley Stadium in London.

Anderlecht easily won the league championship this year but saw its quest for a double thwarted by Charleroi in the Cup semifinals. Standard finished second in the league.

UEFA FINES

THE European Football Union (UEFA) has suspended Atletico Madrid's president Jesus Gil y Gil for six matches for "improper behaviour" towards the referee in the Cup Winners' Cup semifinal against Parma on April 22.

The Spanish club was fined $102,000 for misbehaviour and several Atletico players received match bans for their behaviour during the tie against the Italian club.

Parma went on to win the Cup by beating the tie against the Italian club.

Parma went on to win the Cup by beating Belgium's Antwerp 3-1.

Atletico players surrounded German referee Aron Schmidhuber in protest after substitute Juan Juanito was sent off for a crude late challenge in the 87th minute.

One Parma player threw the ball at Schmidhuber and he was berated further after the final whistle.

Italy's Juventus were ordered to play their next match in UEFA's club competitions at least 300 kms from their home stadium in Turin.

UEFA's control and disciplinary committee said the club's supporters had set off fireworks which delayed the start of the second half in the UEFA Cup final against Borussia Dortmund of Germany on May 19.

Juventus won 6-1 on aggregate.

SOCCER BACKS TURKS

THE German Federation has condemned the arson attack by suspected rightists that killed five Turks, and donated $44,400 to the victims' relatives.

Egidius Braun, president of the Federation, says the German national team will meet an all-star selection of foreigners who play in the Bundesliga in a charity match on October 5 in Augsburg. Braun says foreigners played soccer with us, foreigners are with us in the stadium, foreigners belong with us.

All Bundesliga games last Saturday began with a minute of silence to mark the attack.

PROST'S DOUBLE TARGET IN CANADA

1993 FIA Formula 1 World Championship, Round 7:
Canadian Grand Prix

What do Canada, Hungary and Japan have in common? They are the only countries with Grands Prix where Alain Prost has failed to win, so the little Frenchman will be desperate to break his Canadian "duck" in round seven of the 1993 FIA Formula 1 World Championship in Montreal on Sunday.

Williams-Renault driver Prost has another reason for wanting to succeed on the Circuit Gilles Villeneuve, set on an island in the mighty St Lawrence Seaway. He trails McLaren-Ford star Ayrton Senna by five points as each seeks a fourth Formula 1 drivers crown.

Senna's victory at Monaco last time out has given McLaren renewed impetus, with just two races to go before they are allowed use of the top-specification Ford V8 which until the British Grand Prix is the exclusive property of Benetton.

Few would have predicted that Senna, in an under-powered car competing against the superb Renault V10 R55, would have been leading the title race at this stage. Montreal's tight confines could again minimise the power gap and allow the Brazilian to consolidate at Prost's expense.

Montreal also has a habit of throwing up surprise winners. Two years ago Nelson Piquet took advantage of Nigel Mansell's last-lap gaffe to cruise home in his Benetton, while last year Mansell's kamikaze attempt to pass Senna left the door open for Gerhard Berger to take victory for McLaren.

There was enough evidence in Monaco to suggest that Berger's current team, Ferrari, may well be on the brink of revival, and the Canadian circuit named after one of Ferrari's most-loved drivers, French-Canadian Gilles Villeneuve could help Berger and Alesi continue the form all F1 fans long to see.

Canada, like Monaco, is one of the few places where minor teams can expect to do well: Tyrrell scored points in 1992 for Andrea De Cesaris's fifth place, while Karl Wendlinger joined compatriot Berger in the points with the only top-six finish for the penniless and now defunct march outfit. Wendlinger will be hoping for similar success this year to give a mid-season boost to the exciting new Sauber team.

Neither Williams-Renault made it to the Montreal finish last year. Can Prost overcome his Canadian hoodoo and regain the title lead, or will Senna score a third victory there to add to his successes in 1988 and 1990? Either way, the Grand Prix season is proving once again the glorious uncertainty of sport.

SASOL GRAND PRIX PREVIEW

ROUND 7 — CANADIAN GRAND PRIX
Montreal
13th June 1993

THE seventh round of the 1993 World Championship, the Canadian Grand Prix, takes place on Sunday June 13 at the Gilles Villeneuve Circuit in Mointreal, and with the season now approaching the half-way stage Sasol Jordan have further stepped up their programme in the search for World Championship points. Though a top-six finish has eluded the team so far, Rubens Barrichello has demonstrated the potential of the Jordan-Heart package at the last two races, and reliability has improved with finishes at both events. Now the team must augment that reliability with an increase in performance, and that has been the main area of focus in the weeks since the Monaco Grand Prix.

"We have been doing a lot of testing since the last race" explains Team Manager John Walton. "Although we have completed 620 miles over four days — two days at the Paul Ricard Circuit on the way home from Monaco, and a further two at Silverstone since our return to the UK. We have made some definite progress, and as a result will have a number of new items on the cars in Montreal. The automatic clutch, which we first tested just before the Monaco Grand Prix, has performed well at every test since so both drivers will be using that for qualifying in Montreal, and possibly for the race as well. Likewise we have put a lot of test miles on some modified gears which help to eliminate any possibility of missing a change, and we will be using those in Canada.

"We have also done a lot of testing with a new differential, a new front wing and an 'active' damper system. We will have all of these with us in Canada and have the option to use them if the conditions are right. The differential combines well with the rear suspension geometry which we first introduced in Barcelona to make the car more stable and increase the traction. The new front wing and our 'active' front damper have proved very beneficial when we have run them together at the tests in terms of improving the stability of the car and that could be an important factor at a bumpy circuit like Montreal. We will make a final decision about using them based on the conditions we find when we get there," Walton concludes.

The 4.430km/2.753 mile Circuit Gilles Villeneuve lies on the Ile Notre Dame, site of the Expo 67 World Fair in the middle of the St Lawrence seaway. The circuit holds fond memories for the Sasol Jordan team, who scored their first ever World Championship points there with fourth and fifth places in 1991 and also for Belgian driver Thierry Boutsen who recorded his first Grand Prix win at the 1989 event.

"It was a difficult race" recalls Thierry. "It is a difficult track anyway because of the way that the corners are designed and the fact that it is so bumpy. That year it was very wet too which make it even worse. It was a very satisfying win though!" he added. "Aside from those memories, I have always like the Canadian race — the atmosphere is friendly and enthusiastic and that always makes a big difference to an event.

"I like the circuit a lot as well," he continues. "It's a real driver's circuit. As I said it is pretty difficult, it is always very dirty on the first day because there is not much racing outside the Grand Prix weekend, and you have to keep up a constant level of concentration because with the layout of the corners, the bumps and some of the kerbs it's like having traps set for you all the way round. There are some great corners though. Probably the best one for me is the right-left-right in front of the old pits — it sums up the whole track really; there is virtually no visibility going through the corner, there are big bumps in the middle of it, and you are supposed to take it flat in 6th! It's really challenging, but a big moment when you get it right!

"It's not just the drivers who have a hard challenge in Canada though," adds Thierry. "This is probably the toughest circuit that we visit for the car as well. It is all stop and go — slow chicanes with long straights in between. That makes for very high fuel consumption — we use more fuel at this event than anywhere else — and puts a lot of stress on the brakes, the gearbox and the chassis".

Sasol Jordan will have a chance to assess how the new modifications fitted for this event stand up to that stress when the serious business of racing gets underway on Friday morning. The lighthearted business of racing takes centre-stage for half an hour on Thursday though, as the team take to the water for the annual Mechanics' Raft Race. The Montreal pits lie alongside the man-made lake constructed for the rowing competitions of the 1976 Olympic games.

The Mechanics' Raft Race, which is almost as hotly contested as the Grand Prix itself, consists of two widths of the lake in a 'craft' which must be constructed from items used in the pits during the Grand Prix weekend. For the past two years the Sasol Jordan mechanics have triumphed, beating the rest of the field home to take top honours. To retain the trophy for a third successive year would indeed be gratifying, but Sasol Jordan are looking to Sunday afternoon to secure the real honours.

Clough joins Liverpool from relegated Forest

ENGLAND midfielder Nigel Clough has joined Liverpool from relegated Nottingham Forest.

Clough, son of Forest's retired manager Brian Clough, signed for the Premier League club between returning from England's disastrous World Cup outing in Norway and the trip to America for the US Cup tournament.

Manager Graeme Souness said: "Playing under such a dominating and forceful character as Brian Clough, with such high standards, shows Nigel has a strong personality. That's appealing to me and it shows the character you need to play for Liverpool."

Souness sees the 27-year-old Clough's role as similar to that of his former Liverpool and Scotland team mate Kenny Dalglish, with the ability to both create and score goals.

Clough was top scorer for six of his eight seasons at Forest but managed only 12 goals in 51 matches for his father last season, when he was asked to play in a number of positions.

When Forest was relegated near the end of the season, Clough was expected to leave the City Ground along with Irish midfielder Roy Keane and England's injured defender and captain Stuart Pearce. Keane has been linked with both champion Manchester United and Dalglish's Blackburn Rovers.

HODDLE TAKES OVER CHELSEA

FORMER England World Cup midfielder Glenn Hoddle was appointed manager of Premier League club Chelsea.

Hoddle, who played for Tottenham Hotspur and Monaco and won 53 England caps, steps into his second managerial job at Chelsea after guiding Swindon Town into the top flight for the first time.

Swindon, with player-manager Hoddle scoring the opening goal, beat Leicester City 4-3 at Wembley in the first division promotion playoff final 10 days ago.

Hoddle signed a three-year contract with Chelsea but John Gorman, the coach at Swindon, has decided not to join him and has been appointed the new Swindon manager.

Chelsea chairman Ken Bates said: "Glenn has shown he has outstanding ability. The reason we wanted him was because he plays football in the right way, the way Chelsea fans want to see it played."

Hoddle, who joined Swindon in April 1991, said it was a tough and emotional decision to leave.

"It was a gut feeling, and I always follow gut feelings. I only decided to leave in the last couple of days but I'm walking out with my head held high," he said.

He is Chelsea's sixth manager in 12 years and takes over from their former defender David Webb, who stepped in in mid-season when Ian Porterfield was sacked after a string of poor results.

Hoddle, scorer of 106 goals in 484 league and cup games for Spurs, the club he joined as an apprentice in 1974, is also expected to be registered as a player by Chelsea.

He is no newcomer to Stamford Bridge, having convalesced at the club after returning from Monaco in 1989 with a severe knee injury. He even turned out for Chelsea's reserves.

Hoddle won the UEFA Cup once and English FA Cup twice with Tottenham in the early 1980s and the French league title with Monaco in 1988.

GASCOIGNE TRANSFER FACES TAX PROBE

PAUL Gascoigne's $12.6 million move to Lazio is one of a series of major British football transfers being investigated by the Inland Revenue.

Deals involving a total of more than $45.8 million are being examined following allegations of tax dodging and illegal payments to players.

Investigators have already approached several football clubs and players' agents demanding to see details of financial transactions.

The Inland Revenue is targeting illegal payments to agents and the use of offshore accounts to avoid tax.

Both Gascoigne and former England winger Chris Waddle, whose move from Olympique Marseille to Sheffield Wednesday is facing a probe, have offshore companies.

Inland Revenue sources also said that the transfer of Australian goalkeeper Mark Bosnich from Sydney Croatia to Aston Villa last year was under study.

TAYLOR READY TO DUMP GAZZA

PAUL GASCOIGNE

ENGLAND manager Graham Taylor is ready to dump Paul Gascoigne from his plans unless the Lazio midfielder can cure his apparent weight problem.

Taylor indicated before flying out to America with his squad for the US Cup that Gascoigne would have to improve his fitness over the summer to play in the next World Cup qualifier against Poland at Wembley in September.

The under-fire England boss is quoted in several Sunday newspapers as saying: "Gascoigne has got between now and September to sort himself out."

"That is all I can say. That is all I am prepared to say. I cannot record publicly what all his problems are because then all hell would be let loose."

Gascoigne has looked overweight in recent internationals and there is real concern about his apparent heavy drinking.

Taylor, angered by Gascoigne's below-par display in the World Cup 0-2 flop in Norway, is quoted as adding: "Each time Paul has come to us, he has looked less fit."

However Lazio are adamant they had not neglected Gascoigne's physical condition.

Club doctor and dietician Claudio Bartolini is quoted as saying: "Gascoigne is not at all overweight in my opinion. He is not a big eater and his thick-set figure does not include superfluous fat."

"We are keeping Gascoigne to the diet we fixed for him which includes two pints of beer a day. We will ask him to keep to his diet when he goes back to England on his summer holidays."

Gascoigne is missing from the US Cup because Lazio were planning a tour. Taylor made no attempt to secure the player's release when he heard the tour might be off.

CHARLTON BLASTS ENGLAND EFFORT

FORMER England great Bobby Charlton has admitted that his country does not deserve to qualify for the 1994 World Cup finals in the United States after its dismal showing in Norway.

The 1966 World Cup hero, speaking in Lausanne, Switzerland, said: "To be perfectly honest, I don't think that we're good enough at the moment."

Charlton was furious with the English performance in the 2-0 defeat in Norway.

"It was an unbelievably bad match," said the ex-Manchester United star. "We were technically naive, unprofessional in everything we did. It was a performance that really plumbed the depths."

"What really hurts a lot of people is not that they lost the match but the way that they lost it. We always seem to pride ourselves in being aggressive, tough, professional and brave. Those were all the qualities that were lacking."

"I don't think England have any really, really great players. A fit Paul Gascoigne is a great player, but he's not fit."
